Establishment of Nepal-Oman Bilateral Relations in 1977

Nepal and the Sultanate of Oman formally established diplomatic relations on 21 January 1977, marking the start of a friendly and cooperative partnership. This milestone strengthened Nepal's engagement with the Gulf region and created a framework for political dialogue, economic interaction, and people-to-people contact. The 1977 agreement laid the groundwork for a growing relationship that later expanded through people-to-people contacts, labour-force migration, institutional cooperation, and the establishment of Nepal's residential embassy in Muscat in 2013.

A letter was sent to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MoFA) and the Permanent Mission to Nepal, New York to provide the relevant documents and photographs of the signing event and a response is yet to be received.

Brief on Nepal - Oman Relations

Political Relations

Nepal and the Sultanate of Oman established their diplomatic relations on 21 January, 1977. The relations between the two countries have always remained cordial and friendly. Mutual trust, respect, understanding and cooperation form the strong basis of our bilateral relations. Prior to the opening of residential Embassy in Muscat in 2013, the Embassy of Nepal in Riyadh was concurrently accredited to the Sultanate. The Embassy of Oman in New Delhi is concurrently accredited to Nepal.

(New Chancery of the Embassy of Nepal in Muscat was formally inaugurated by H. H. Mohammad Salim Ali Al-Said, Chief of Protocol Department on November 20, 2013 and started full-fledged functioning along with Consular services. The then Foreign Secretary of Nepal Mr. Arjun Bahadur Thapa later inaugurated the Embassy at its premises on December 25, 2013.)

There exist ample potentials for cooperation between the two countries in the areas of tourism, trade and investment, as well as in further expanding employment opportunities for Nepali nationals in Oman.

Nepal and the Sultanate of Oman share similar views on several issues of regional and global concern. Both the countries are the members of the United Nations, Non-Aligned Movement (NAM), G-77, Asia Cooperation Dialogue (ACD) and many other international forums. They have been working together and also playing an active role in these forums for the promotion of international peace and security, collective progress, prosperity and wellbeing of global citizens.

Who is the oldest Nepali to visit Oman?

There is no clear information regarding who was the first Nepali person to visit Oman. However, a written record was found from a letter sent in 1985 by a Sales Manager named Purna Bahadur Chhetri (who worked at Nihal Trading Company in Oman) addressed to the Nepali delegation arriving to participate in Oman's Fifteenth National Day (18 November 1985).

According to that letter, approx. 200 Nepalis were working in Oman at that time. The letter mentioned that most of the Nepalis arrived in Oman via India and some of them held Indian passports and due to their honesty and hard-working nature of Nepalis, good employment opportunities were available for Nepalis. The letter extended an invitation for a 'Get-Together' program with the Nepali delegation. The Embassy will be updating the information as soon as we receive further authentic information.

The first official visit by Nepali delegation to Oman in 1985

There are no concrete details regarding the first official visit by Nepali delegation Oman after the establishment of diplomatic ties on 21 January 1977.

However, according to the archives, a three-member delegation led by the then-Minister of Foreign Affairs, Education, and Culture, Hon. Ranabir Subba, visited Oman on 19 November 1985. On the occasion of the 15th anniversary of the accession to the throne and 45th birthday of the then Sultan of Oman, His Majesty Sultan Qaboos, the Nepali delegation arrived in Oman.

The above visit information was obtained from the letter written by the then Ambassador of Nepal to Saudi Arabia, H.E. Tirtharaj Tuladhar, to his Omani counterpart, the then Omani Ambassador to Saudi Arabia, Mr. Abdullah bin Ahmed bin Salim Al Marhoom. In the three-page letter, he highlighted the warm hospitality extended by the Omani side, the audience with the then Sultan of Oman, His Majesty Sultan Qaboos bin Said, and the bilateral meeting with the Omani Foreign Minister during the visit of Nepali delegation.
