Section 7. Terms of Reference

Terms of Reference for Preparing the List of Rivers Based on River Classification of Nepal

Nepal is endowed with a dense network of rivers originating from the Himalayas and hills, which play a vital role in irrigation, hydropower, drinking water, ecosystems, and cultural values.

With the implementation of federalism under the Constitution of Nepal 2015, the management and governance of water resources, including rivers have been devolved among the three tiers of government: federal, provincial, and local. Recently, Water and Energy Commission Secretariat (WECS) has prepared the river basin plans of Nepal. The new Water Resources Bill is in the process of approval from the parliament.

In order to support sustainable water resource planning and management as per spirit of the draft Water Resources Bill and river basin plans, it is essential to classify rivers and prepare a comprehensive and standardized list accordingly. River classification may include parameters such as physiographic region, perennial/intermittent nature, ecological significance, size (length/flow), and cultural or legal status.

Despite the legal and institutional recognition of water-related responsibilities among the three levels of government, there remains a lack of a standardized, classified, and jurisdictionally aligned list of rivers. Clarifying which rivers fall under which government's jurisdiction is crucial for planning, regulation, investment, conservation, and conflict resolution.

In this context, the WECS intends to conduct a study titled "Preparing the List of Rivers Based on River Classification of Nepal" through consulting services utilizing the fund from Government of Nepal. River Classification refers to assigning different types of rivers or stretch/section of rivers to federal, provincial and local government's jurisdiction for its development and management. This assignment aims to compile a comprehensive list of rivers, classified by level (or order), length, name and develop a criteria for allocation of rivers or stretch of rivers, and recommend administrative jurisdiction to different spheres of the Government. If required, WECS will form a Group of Experts for monitoring the quality of the service provided by the Consultant.

1. Objectives of the study

To prepare a comprehensive and standardized list of rivers in Nepal based on scientific and practical criteria for the preparation of river classification framework to support development of administrative jurisdiction across federal, provincial, and local governments for effective governance and sustainable management of the rivers in Nepal.

2. Scope of Work

The Scope of Work of the proposed work includes, but does not limit to, the followings:

- i. Institutional and policy Review
- ii. Preparing River Classification Framework
- iii. Preparing the List of Rivers based on proposed classification framework

- iv. Data Compilation and validation of river classification
- v. Potential Jurisdiction Mapping of rivers
- vi. Stakeholder Consultation

3. Final Outputs

- GIS-based database compatible with national systems
- A validated and classified list of rivers (River Atlas for each local governments, provinces and federal government)
- A comprehensive report on methodology, classification criteria, data sources, and legal references

4. Duration and Phase of the work

The whole study shall be completed in 9 months after signing of the contract. The scope of the work for each phase shall include, but not limited to, the followings:

- Review national, regional and international practices in river classification (e.g., by physiographic zone, hydrology, ecology, administrative boundary, multilevel governance of rivers and river basin etc.) with at least 2 case studies each for regional and international.
- The inception report shall include the detailed information and methodology of this study.
- At least 2 hard copies of the initial and revised inception report including a soft copy shall be submitted to WECS for its approval. All pages of the hard copy should be authenticated by the consultant with official signature and official stamps.

WECS may also invite the experts and concerned professionals in this Workshop. All the comments and suggestions provided by WECS shall be incorporated in the revised Inception Report.

5.2 Interim Phase

River level is similar to stream order reported in literature but in reverse direction and is a bottom up approach for stream ordering.

- Include relevant attributes such as name (available in top sheets or in other secondary sources), length, origin, tributaries, basin, seasonal/perennial status, etc., based on the river classification framework

5.2.3 Validation of River Classification
