Three men stand in the center. The man on the left wears sunglasses and a dark shirt with a bright orange shawl. The man in the middle wears a traditional Nepali cap (Dhaka topi) and a white kurta with a colorful shawl. The man on the right wears a dark jacket over a white shirt and a dark cap. They are all holding papers, likely related to the book launch.

A woman on the far right is wearing a dark blue jacket over a white shirt and a dark cap. She is holding a stack of papers and looking towards the group.
